After being diagnosed with bipolar disorder in her twenties and overcoming a major depression, Natalie Pavey found a passion for creating art that expresses the beauty of the world around us as a way to counter destructive emotions. Surrounded by water in the seaport city of Saint John, she felt drawn to the changing skies and waterways in the region's seaside and rivers. The ever-changing colours and organic mashup of water and land not only capture the eye, but also allow the observer the opportunity to examine their own interior, whether calm or turbulent.
